INDIA RUBBER TREES

WHERE THEY FLOURISH AND HOW THEY ARE CLASSIFIED.

The Para Method of Smoking the Sap to Produce Coagulation—One of Nature's Gifts For Which Man Can Devise No Substitute.

The steadily increasing demand for india rubber, the great variety of its uses and the failure of attempts to devise any satisfactory substitute for it were facts suggested by a conversation with members of the staff of the New York botanical garden incidental to an inspection of the india rubber economic collection in the garden's museum.

This collection is an exceptionally good one, comprising herbarium specimens of the leaves, seeds and fruit of rubber plants and trees, a specimen of the milk or sap which is the basis of india rubber and samples of the commercial product in its various stages up to and including vulcanization. All the principal varieties of rubber are represented, and in the garden's greenhouses are living specimens of the plants producing them. The most notable exhibit in the economic collection is a bottle of the milk from a Para rubber tree, pure white and looking like cow's milk, very recently presented to the garden by John Lane Beck, who brought it from Peru. Such a specimen is said to be extremely rare in the temperate zone. Then there are samples of india rubber in the various processes of the manufacture and a few specimens of fully completed products. The most curious of the latter is a pair of shoes made by South American natives in the rude mold of a foot shaped hole in the ground, into which the rubber was poured in a semiliquid condition and fashioned in the desired form while plastic. In addition, there is a collection of tools used in gathering the sap from the india rubber trees, such as the pick or hatchet for wounding the bark, the tin cup in which the sap is received as it exudes, etc.

As is generally known, the remarkable commercial product called india rubber, or caoutchouc, is formed from the milky juice of various trees and shrubs, which is dried and coagulated. The first European knowledge of it was derived through the second voyage of Columbus, when it was noted that rubber balls, said to be made "of the gum of a tree," were used in a game played by the natives of Haiti. One of the trees yielding the juice was generally described by Torquemada in 1615, but the first accurate information concerning any of the caoutchouc trees was supplied by La Condamine, who in 1735 was sent by the French government to measure an arc of the meridian near Quito, in Ecuador. By the natives of South America the crude india rubber was employed for balls used in games, for waterproofing garments and for the material of shoes. A great obstacle to any general use of such rubber for a long period after it became known to Europeans was the fact that while it is dry and leatherlike at a low temperature it becomes sticky and very soft when exposed to a high one. In the latter part of the eighteenth century the celebrated English scientist, Dr. Priestley, who passed his later years in this country, directed public attention to india rubber as a novelty for erasing pencil marks, stating that it was then sold in England in cubical pieces of half an inch for 3 shillings a piece.

Although india rubber was utilized in the first half of the nineteenth century for the manufacture of very crude and clumsy overshoes, which became soft in warm weather, and for some other purposes, its industrial use did not become general until the American inventor, Charles Goodyear, after repeated trials and failures, succeeded in 1844 in introducing the process of vulcanizing. By the admixture of a little sulphur and the application of heat he produced india rubber in a form which is unaffected by ordinary temperatures and is even less susceptible to external influences than leather. Moreover, this treatment increases its pliancy and elasticity. One of the important properties of rubber in the course of manufacture is that in the process of kneading or "masticating" it by machinery it becomes soft and plastic, and the purer it is the more plastic it is. In this condition it can be formed at will into any shape desired, which it retains when vulcanized.

At first only two kinds of India rubber were generally known to commerce, one being a product of Mexico and Central America, called the Castilloa elastica, and the other the rubber found in Brazil, especially in the province of Para, known as Para rubber, or hevea, which has ranked as the best and purest kind, being the freest of all from resin. Another very good variety in Brazil is the Caucho blanco, called virgin rubber, which is obtained from various species of sapium. India rubber is now produced throughout the tropics from a large number of trees and plants which belong botanically to three large groups. These are the family apocynaceae represented in the north temperate zone by the dogbane, the family euphorbiaceae, or spurge family, and the fig family. In commerce no distinction is made by botanical names, but the varieties are designated by the place of origin, as the Para rubber, the Central American, the Ceara rubber (Manihot glaziovii) and the East Indian or Assam rubber (Ficus elastica). The last named kind, which becomes a big tree in the tropics, is familiar here as the rubber plant that is grown in pots for household decoration.

New rubber plants are still frequently discovered. A number of years ago a new and superior species of rubber was found in Largos, in Africa. Madagascar also has produced excellent rubber within a comparatively recent period. In eastern and central Africa several new rubber plants have been discovered in recent years. Even Mexico has yielded a new rubber, called the gauyule, but this is of inferior value.

The milk of the rubber tree is not simply liquid caoutchouc, but contains the latter as an oillike matter, which is suspended in the milk as an emulsion. Gatherers of this juice when making incisions in the tree with a pick or hatchet must take the greatest care not completely to penetrate the inner bark, as that would provide a means of entrance for boring insects, which would destroy the life of the tree.

There are various methods of effecting the coagulation of the milk, but the Para gatherers depend almost wholly upon the operation of smoking. Various palm nuts are commonly used as a fuel, and the quickness with which the smoke from these produces coagulation has been attributed to the presence in it of acetic acid. The shells of brazil nuts have also been used for the same purpose with fairly good results.

In burning the fuel it is sought to prevent perfect combustion, so as to secure a greater quantity of smoke, and an inverted clay pot with a hole in the bottom is placed over the fire. The milk is exposed to the smoke issuing from the orifice, a paddle, which has been dipped into a large vessel of the liquid, being held in the cloud of smoke, which so quickly coagulates the milk that the paddle can be dipped again almost immediately. This process is repeated until the mass of india rubber on the paddle becomes unwieldy, when it is removed.

Despite the extensive production of rubber in various countries, the demand for it has increased more rapidly than the supply. The better the quality of the rubber the longer is the growth of the tree producing it and the longer it takes to yield the material. The poorer rubbers can be obtained much more quickly. As it comes to market the bulk of crude rubber contains a large percentage of impurities, especially resins. Para rubber was formerly substantially free from resin and dirt, but it is said that some of the rubber now produced on plantations is even superior to the best Para. In general, however, the cultivation of rubber on plantations has not been very successful, though it has been carried on to a considerable extent in Ceylon and the Dutch East Indies. It is said that all the South American companies organized to operate such plantations have hitherto failed to produce much rubber. In explanation it is pointed out that from sixteen to twenty years are required for a Para rubber tree to become productive, from the time its seed is planted, and even then its yield of milk is scanty. Moreover, the vigor of a tree, especially a young one, is injured by much tapping. Full maturity, it is believed, is not attained by a Para tree in less than fifty years.

To increase the supply rubbers have been largely adulterated, a great variety of resins being used, giving the material more body, but impairing its strength and making it brittle. Many attempts have been made to manufacture substitutes for rubber, commonly with oxidized linseed or corn oil as a basis, but all such efforts are averred to have been failures. As one of the experts at the botanical garden said, "The alleged substitutes for rubber are not rubber, and science has not yet succeeded in producing anything which can be called caoutchouc." A story has been told that an English chemist some years ago achieved the production of a compound, with turpentine as a basis, which comprised all the properties of genuine india rubber, but was unable for some unexplained reason to duplicate the experiment. This tale is discredited by botanists at the garden. Any one who could produce artificially the equivalent of real india rubber at a reasonable cost would secure Dr. Johnson's "potentiality of growing rich beyond the dreams of avarice."

The ordinary vulcanized material contains only from one-half to 1 per cent of sulphur, but if enough more is added it produces the hornlike substance called hard rubber, used for combs, penholders, knife handles, eyeglass rims, watch chains and many other articles. This hard rubber, which takes a fine polish, is valuable to the electrician for its insulating properties and to the chemist and photographer because vessels made of it are unaffected by most chemical reagents.—New York Post.

A STOLEN INVENTION.

How the Designer of the Hansom Cab Lost a Fortune.

Charles Hansom, the famous English architect, was a talented man in many respects other than in the exercise of his profession. He was dining on a certain day with a few friends when one of them taunted him with being unable to invent a vehicle which would supersede the old fashioned hacks and cabs in universal use in London. Mr. Hansom got a sheet of paper, and without any delay he sketched out his idea of a safe and convenient mode of passing through the crowded streets of the great metropolis. His friends watched him while he was at work and unanimously applauded the sketch which he had drawn. They dubbed it by the name of its inventor, and it was then and there called a "Hansom car." One of those present advised him to take out a patent for it, which he said he would do on the morrow. However, there was one dishonest man in the company, by whom he was forestalled, for on reaching his own house that evening and being, like Mr. Hansom, a clever draftsman, as all great architects are, he sketched out a car like the drawing he had seen, and early the following morning he took it to the office and got out a patent for it in his own name, thus robbing the talented inventor of all the remuneration which he deserved to reap from it. It brought an immense but ill gotten fortune to the one who had perpetrated the fraud, whereas Mr. Charles Hansom was never one penny the richer.—Donahoe's.

Irving and the Padded Leg.

Given the old "reading of lines," the mellifluous elocution of the part as the test of acting, and they were an insuperable bar to his acceptance as an actor. Overflowing, overwhelming success came in spite of these, because acting is more than elocution, because it is an art which depends for its success not on cadences, but on the intellectual and emotional mastery of situation and character. "One of my calves," said Mr. Lawrence Barrett, "is a little smaller than the other. Most legs are that way. I had always padded the worse leg until I was in London and had a talk with Henry Irving. He pointed out to me that it was better to leave your legs as they were made. They fitted the figure as a whole, and the instant you padded the general balance of the figure was upset and you had a sense of unreality." I quote from memory after years, but with perfect certainty as to broad fact and general expression. How keen, how penetrating, how illuminating was this view which accepted even physical imperfection as part of the stock in trade with which a sense of reality could be created!—Talcott Williams in Atlantic.

His Preparation.

Bill Nye once told a story about a man who, after eight hours' work on a country daily, was fired for incompetency and then went on a lecture tour of the country on the subject of "Journalism."

There are three kinds of people in the world—the wife, the world and the ogres. The first attempts everything, the second opposes everything, the third fits in everything.

BEQUESTS OF HEARTS.

The Dying Wish of Bruce and the Fate of Douglas.

Bequests of hearts have been by no means uncommon. Richard Coeur de Lion bequeathed his heart to the canons of Rouen cathedral, and in July, 1828, this remarkable relic was once again brought to light after the lapse of six centuries. The heart, which is said to have been surprisingly large, was inclosed in boxes of lead and silver and withered, as it was described, to the semblance of a faded leaf.

Bruce's heart was by his dying wish entrusted to Douglas to fulfill a vow which he had been unable to execute in person of visiting the sepulcher of Christ. Douglas, "tender and true," promised to fulfill his sovereign's last request and after Bruce's death, having received the heart incased in a casket of gold, set forth upon his mission. Proceeding to Spain, however, he fell in the thick of a fight with the Moors, having previous to his final charge cast the heart of Bruce from his breast, when he carried it into the ranks of the infidels, crying, "Onward as thou wert wont; Douglas will follow thee!" Bruce's heart was afterward recovered by Sir Simon Lockhart, by whom it was brought to Scotland and buried along with the bones of Douglas in the abbey of Melrose. When the remains of Bruce were disinterred at Dunfermline in 1819 the breastbone was found sawed through so as to permit of the removal of the heart.

DIED WITH HIS CHUM.

A Deed of Heroism That Stirred an Entire Army.

In the reminiscences of General Sir Evelyn Wood, himself a brave English soldier, a touching instance of courage and self sacrifice is given. One June day in 1885 a detachment of English marines was crossing the Woronzow road under fire from the Russian batteries. All of the men reached shelter in the trenches except a seaman, John Blewitt. As he was running a terrific roar was heard. His mates knew the voice of a huge cannon, the terror of the army, and yelled:

"Look out! It is Whistling Dick!"

But at the moment Blewitt was struck by the enormous mass of iron on the knees and thrown to the ground. He called to his special chum:

"Oh, Welch, save me!"

The fuse was hissing, but Stephen Welch ran out of the trenches and, seizing the great shell, tried to roll it off his comrade.

It exploded with such terrific force that not an atom of the bodies of Blewitt and Welch was found. Even in that time when each hour had its excitement this deed of heroism stirred the whole English army. One of the officers searched out Welch's old mother in her poor home and undertook her support while she lived, and the story of his death helped his comrades to nobler conceptions of a soldier's duty.

The Lavish Jenkins.

In October, 1890, a religiously minded Buckinghamshire farmer named Jenkins brought his firstborn to the parish church to be christened, and this was to be the name: Abel Benjamin Caleb Daniel Ezra Felix Gabriel Haggai Isaac Jacob Kish Levi Manoah Nehemiah Obdiah Peter Quartus Rechab Samuel Tobiah Uzziel Vaniah Word Xystus Zechariah. It will be observed that the names are all arranged in alphabetical order and are as far as possible selected from Scripture. It was only with the very great est difficulty that the clergyman dissuaded Mr. Jenkins from doing the thing wrong to his child that he had unwittingly devised, but eventually it was decided to christen the boy simply Abel.—Chambers' Journal.

Handy Feet.

Mr. Nolan's description of an acrobatic performance was clear enough to any listener, although his excitement over it led his tongue, as usual, into unfrequented mazes of speech.

"He was a wonderful man, that man was," said Mr. Nolan to his audience. "You'd see him go up a ladder wid the end of it [illegible] the air and the bottom of it [illegible] a kind of a sofa pillow an' you'd [illegible] There's a man going to his death.'

"But was he? Not a bit of it! Any man that can put such a football on the air wid his hands and he as handy wid his feet as a monkey there's no fear for him."—Youth's Companion.

MADNESS IN COLORS.

TINTS THAT WILL TURN THE BRAIN AND INVITE DEATH.

Purple Is the Most Lethal of All Hues, and Scarlet Is Nearly as Bad. Blue Will Stimulate the Brain, but It Will Wreck the Nerves.

If purple walls and red tinted windows surrounded you for a month, with no color but purple around you, by the end of that time you would be a madman. No matter how strong the brain might be, it would not stand the strain, and it is doubtful if you would ever recover your reason, for purple is the most dangerous color there is in its effects on the brain, which it reaches by way of the nerves of the eye.

A splash or two of any other color in the room would save your reason for some time longer, but dead purple would kill you eventually as surely as would foul air. Scarlet is as bad, but scarlet has a different effect. It produces what is called homicidal mania a madness that drives its victim to kill his fellows, especially his nearest relatives. Even on animals scarlet has this effect. It will drive a bull or a tiger to charge a naked spear. But purple, on the contrary, brings on melancholy or suicidal mania.

Blue, as long as there is no trace of red in it, stimulates the brain and helps it, but its effect on your nerves, if you are saturated with it and cannot get away from it, is terrible. Scientists class blue as a kind of drug in its effects on the brain.

It excites the imagination and gives a craving for music and stagecraft, but it has a reaction that wrecks the nerves. If you doubt it stare hard for a few minutes at a large sheet of bright blue paper or cloth—not flowers, for there is a good deal of green in their blue—and you will find that it will make your eyes ache and give you a restless, uneasy feeling.

Green, on the other hand, is the king of colors, and no amount of it can do any harm. On the contrary, it soothes the whole system and preserves the eyesight. If you were shut up in an artificial green light for a month it would develop your eyesight immensely, but it would be fatal, because when you returned to the world you would be utterly unable to stand ordinary lights and colors and you would certainly contract ophthalmia, or possibly destroy the optic nerve altogether unless you were very mindful to take great care.

Most people imagine the sky in clear weather to be blue. It is really white tinged with green. It is only the distance and clearness which make it seem blue.

Green is so soothing that it makes a big difference in the length of an illness, helping the system to fight the disease, and nearly all hospital wards have every possible detail about them colored green. Sage green is the most soothing tint of all; metallic green, however, is by no means so good.

Solitary confinement in a yellow cell for six weeks will hopelessly weaken any system and produce chronic hysteria. A long course of it will produce foolish lunacy, and even on a guinea pig or a rabbit will drive the animal at last to bite and wound itself or reduce it to such a state of nervousness that it will die of sheer fright if suddenly startled.

On the other hand, if you are not smothered with it yellow is the healthiest, cheeriest color there is, and will make a dark room bright and habitable when even green would be cold and depressing. But to be well "soused" with yellow day and night, and to be unable to get away from it, would bring you to nervous madness within two months at the outside.

Sheer dead white, unbroken, will destroy your eyesight as surely as cataract would if you are exposed to it for a few days—a week at the latest. It kills the optic nerves, and the sight goes out like a candle, while the effect on the brain is so maddening that blindness is almost a relief.

This is why arctic explorers have to wear colored "goggles" of green tinted glass; otherwise "snow blindness," as it is called, and which is really "white blindness," is almost a certainty. Even in the polar regions, though, the white is not complete. The sky breaks it. If it did not no man could keep his eyesight there without glasses.—New York News.

As a rule people discover a man to be worth knowing to any one as he grows older.

MODERN MACCABEES ORGANIZED HERE

Large Attendance at Installation of Lodge Friday Evening.

THE ELECTION OF OFFICERS

Many Prominent Citizens and Business Men of the City Were Present, and Interest Manifested Was Great—Adjourned Meeting to June 1.

University Tent of the Knights of the Modern Maccabees was instituted Friday evening in the P. O. S. of A. hall, with about forty of our leading cititizens as charter members.

Supervising Deputy A. C. Hamrick of Jacksonville briefly stated the object of the meeting, and also gave a brief history of the order as follows:

The Knights of the Modern Maccabees was first founded in the city of London, Ontario, in the year 1878, by a few gentlemen who conceived the idea of forming a fraternal and beneficial society based upon the traditions of that noble band of warriers who followed the fortunes of that valiant leader, Judas Maccabees, about 175 B. C., and the American branch was formed in the spring of 1880, under a charter granted by the State of Michigan, and Port Huron was designated as its headquarters.

Major N. S. Boynton, the present Great Commander and founder of the order, owns a winter home on the East Coast of Florida and is one of our regular winter residents.

The order has paid out since organization in death claims and disability benefits over ten million dollars, and has a combined membership of over one hundred and twenty-five thousand.

The following officers were elected and installed for the ensuing term:

Past Commander, W E Baker; Commander, Geo. P. Morris; Lieutenant-Commander, John W. Blanding; Record and Finance Keeper, W. B. Higdon; Chaplain, J. F. Bunch; Physician, Dr. J. H. Colson; Sergeant, L. J. Burkhim; Master-at-Arms, J. H. Morton; First Master of Guards, C. B. Boyd; Second Master of Guards, F. M. Prewitt; Sentinel, J. M. Fennell; Picket, C. R. Ellis.

Mr. Hamrick was assisted in the work by Deputy R. G. Blake of Ocala, who acted as Grand Master-at-Arms.

One of the special features was the introduction of a real long-horned Rocky Mountain goat, and volunteers were asked to ride this animal. The "Man who Never Sleeps," Sir Knight Jesse E. Burtz, volunteered, and his ability to ride left no doubt in the minds of his spectators that he learned horsemanship upon bucking broncos of the Western plains.

Arrangements have been made to give the initiation in full regalia at the next meeting, which will be next Friday evening, June 1st.

All the members are very enthusiastic and have pledged themselves to build up the order in this city so that it will rank second to none in the State.

TELLS BY THEIR SLEEP

"I can tell by my little ones' sleep when a cold is coming on" said a mother when speaking of the advance symptoms of colds in children. "They toss about, are restless, their breathing is heavy and there are symptoms of night sweats. The next morning I start with Scott's Emulsion. The chances are that in a day or two they are all over it. Their rest is again peaceful and the breathing normal."

Here's a suggestion for all mothers. Scott's Emulsion always has been almost magical in its action when used as the ounce of prevention. Nothing seems to overcome child weakness quite so effectively and quickly as Scott's Emulsion.

DR. MONTGOMERY.

He Gives Reasons Why Dampier Should be Retained as Commissioner.

Dear Mr. Editor: When I was a boy I used to be fond of writing little outlines of current interest, but since so many of the days have gone by, and since they are getting more like the drunk man's bed, going faster than usual, I have left it off for pleasures and duties of a different kind. I believe in evolution to this extent, that when we have gone along others will follow. And I believe in humanity to this extent, that we ought to do by others better than they were able to do by us. And I believe in patriotism to this extent, that the equal and uniform benefit, interests and rights of the whole people should be the supreme law of the land. And I believe in religion to this extent, that God looks upon a man as a fool who prays and waits for help and at the same time won't try to help himself. And I believe in icthyology to this extent, that the big fish ought not to wait to eat up the little ones.

Now some may ask, "what does he mean by such expressions as these?" Well, I will tell you: I mean that every man in Alachua county who is strictly sound and orthodox on the subjects of evolution, humanity, patriotism, religion and icthyology should vote at the next primary election for John G. Dampier for county commissioner.

Now some will ask, "why does he say this?" I will tell you: I have carefully watched his course in the past, and have found that he is not a man to go off half-cocked on any subject. I have found him patient, investigative, prudent, careful, impartial and economical. He has no pets (I am only talking of men and business matters), no section hobbies nor local partialities, but the county is his field and he is a county man. I am willing to judge the future by the past and stand by these statements. John G. Dampier will be found true to evolution to the extent that he would not join in setting a precedent that he did not believe best for our children to follow. Faithful to humanity in that, as county commissioner, he will require every tub to stand on its own bottom. Patriotic to the opinion that the fellow who lives just inside the farthest curve of the county line has the same right to assistance from county funds as the man who lives next door to the court house. True to religion to the extent that the district that pulls out its own money and planks it down for public improvements is entitled to reasonable consideration from the county commissioners. Sound on the subject of icthyology to the extent that while he is on the board the big fish will have a hard time to eat up the little ones.

I am sure that Dampier and other members of the board like him save the county from $50 to $300 a month by close business-like scrutiny of bills that come in for payment.

What is Dampier blamed for? He is blamed for using his influence against using the surplus of the fine and forfeiture fund for the benefit of the school board. Now I am not a lawyer, but I will tell you something just the same. At the last session of the Legislature, Dampier and other county commissioners and county attorneys and other people secured the passage of a bill authorizing the county commissioners to transfer the surplus of the fine and forfeiture fund to such other funds as might need it. This was all right, and if it had been let alone the county commissioners could have drawn that surplus for such purposes as in their judgment needed it most. But through some influence the Governor vetoed the bill.

Then there was another bill passed, giving this surplus to the school board. This was unconstitutional, and in violation of our statutes, because it took from the county commissioners the exercise of their legal discretion.

Section 585 of our Revised Statutes provides that the county commissioners shall draw no warrant upon any fund except that for which said fund was raised. It also provides that should the county commissioners do such a thing, the county treasurer is prohibited from paying the warrant. There is another section which provides that any county commissioner or county treasurer who wilfully violates Section 585 shall be punished by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars. Dampier would not do it, therefore he is blamed.

There is a friendly suit now pending before Judge Wills to determine whether there is a way in which the county commissioners can use that surplus.

The county treasurer is the keeper of all county funds. If anybody objects to that surplus being there without doing anybody any good, let them give sufficient security to the treasurer and borrow it and use it as they please.

In mentioning the exercises at the close of Miss Maggie Teabeau's school, the name of Miss Islay Eddins was ommitted in the literary and musical exercises. This was an oversight, and the reporter desires to make an apology. The young lady did her work excellently, and deserves credit.

The Sun acknowledges receipt of an invitation to attend the exercises of the graduating class of the Nurses' Training School of St. Luke's Hospital, Jacksonville, which will be held on the evening of Wednesday, May 30, at the rooms of the Woman's Club. A message from Baltimore from Trueheart Bodiford, who has been attending the Maryland College of Pharmacy, was received by his father, Dr. J. H. Bodiford Saturday. The message stated that the young man had graduated, had passed a successful examination, and in addition to this, had received honorary mention.

The many friends in this city of Mr. Bodiford will be gratified to learn of his success, and will extend the hartiest congratulations. It means that in a course of two years he has graduated as a pharmacist from one of the leading medical schools of the South, and with high honor.

Letter to J. D. Matheson, Gainesville, Fla.

Dear Sir: Would you rather have your customers speak of your shoes as wearing well, as not running down at the heel, as turning water, and taking a shine; or wag their heads and say nothing?

We'd rather have ours, at long intervals, say: "We want some more paint, and we want Devoe." We know it isn't in human nature to pay very often; we don't expect them to come very often; don't want 'em to. All we want is to paint what they have to paint, whenever they paint it; the longer the time the surer they are to come back. There's business enough in the world; there are houses enough to paint; let 'em take their time.

If we were a shoemaker, we'd make shoes to last half a lifetime, and shoe the whole town. Yours truly,

F. W. Devoe & Co.,
New York.

HONOR TO M'BEATH.

Was Invited to Mississippi as Lecturer, But Had to Decline.

Prof. Tom. F. McBeath received yesterday afternoon a telegram from President Hardy of the State A. and M. Being, however, a member of the faculty of the University Summer School to begin here June 12, he was unable to accept the offer.

Will Stop Here for Dinner.

Beginning today, the Jacksonville and St. Petersburg train, due here at 12:40 p. m., will stop here twenty minutes for dinner. This will afford quite a benefit to the city, as passengers will have time to get out, "stretch" themselves, and see what the city is like. The management of the Atlantic Coast Line has been very friendly to Gainesville, which fact is highly appreciated.

THE DAILY SUN, 10c A WEEK

Mr. Clint G. Ford, who has been identified with the very foremost dramatic attractions, including Gillet's "Secret Service Co.," "David Harum," "The Chairman" etc., has this to say of Newbro's Herpicide:

"For years I was annoyed with dandruff and itching of the scalp, all due to my twenty years of theatrical life with its incumbent 'make-up' and wig wearing. At times the itching of the scalp was intense. All remedies failed me until I tried Herpicide, and I soon found that it was giving wonderful results. The itching and also the dandruff, entirely ceased and my hair resumed its natural life and vigor.

"There is no question in my mind about the reality of the dandruff germ and I unhesitatingly recommend Herpicide to my friends in the profession.

(Signed) CLINT G. FORD."

THEATRICAL FOLK

USE AND RECOMMEND

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Extravagant claims for toilet remedies do not influence theatrical people, because long experience enables them to discriminate intelligently. They demand merit and will rarely use a preparation that is not actually worth as much or more than it costs in dollars and cents.

Herpicide kills the dandruff germ and by actual test does more good than all other hair remedies combined. This accounts for its popularity in theatrical circles.

"Queen Roselle" writes of Newbro's Herpicide

"I take pleasure in announcing the very satisfactory results I have had from the use of Newbro's Herpicide. My hair was falling out so rapidly that I was afraid I would lose it all. A friend advised Herpicide, and after using it faithfully my hair stopped falling out, the dandruff disappeared and my hair is now very soft and glossy.

"I would like to see every lady of the profession try Herpicide, for I am confident that they would be delighted with it.

(Signed) QUEEN ROSELLE."

THE ROCKEFELLER FORTUNE.

It is estimated that John D. Rockefeller has received in dividends from his share of Standard Oil stock $114,000,000 since 1898. This is probably a moderate estimate.

It is at the rate of about $14,000,000 a year, or nearly $47,000 every business day. If Mr. Rockefeller should adopt the rule of giving a tenth of his income to charity, says The Wall Street Journal, this would mean a disbursement of $1,400,000. It cannot be doubted that Mr. Rockefeller's annual philanthropy amounts to much more than that. But his Standard Oil dividends are only a part of his income, for his outside investments must be enormous; and large as are his charities, the balance left for reinvestment is so great as to suggest the interesting problem of the size of his fortune through the simple process of compounding of interest.

Nevertheless, shall such a fortune be made the object of envy? Shall it be made the object of laws the intention of which is confiscation?

Whatever may be the peril of such wealth in the hands of one man, would not any attempt to take it away from him by force of law involve a vaster peril to society? Every man who has an income from savings of $1,000 or $100 a year has as much concern in the protection of Mr. Rockefeller's fortune as Mr. Rockefeller has himself. If the law may confiscate the great fortune, it may also confiscate the small.

When, however, in the course of nature, Mr. Rockefeller dies, and his fortune is bequeathed to others, may not the government rightfully step in and take a portion of it? The nation may rightfully claim to be one of the natural heirs of every fortune. In other words, an inheritance tax, of even large proportions, seems to be from every point of view fair, and a beneficient way of preventing the too great growth of family fortunes such as might overshadow the power of the government itself. On the other hand, any legislation to limit the size of a man's fortune during his life-time is setting bounds to beneficent ambition and enterprise.

STATE RIGHTS.

It is something to discover that a State at least has the right to bar a foreign corporation from doing business within its borders. There is not much left of State rights, but the Supreme Court of the United States last week conceded so much. It was in the case of the Traveller's Insurance Company against the Insurance Commissioner of the State of Kentucky. The decision rendered by Justice Peckham was in favor of the State. It seems that the insurance company, in common with other corporations, had been in the habit of removing complaints against them to the Federal courts when an action was brought in the State courts. The result was that the company was barred from the State. The case was taken to the Supreme Court. Justice Peckham had two of his colleagues against him in a dissenting opinion, Justice Day and Justice Harlan, but the majority of the court held that the State was perfectly within its rights in barring out any corporation it wished. Justice Peckham said that a State may refuse to let an outside company do any business whatsoever within its borders, and that the State law was not in conflict with the constitution.

This decision is seemingly simple, but it involves a point that is of the utmost importance in the cases of the Standard Oil Company and other corporations. The decision cannot but be read by these gentlemen with a great deal of interest, and in view of the revelations that have been made by the Commissioner of Corporations, and by the Interstate Commerce Commission, it is possible that there will be a number of States in which offending corporations will find themselves without a domicile.

The most deadly instrument known to mortal man is the human tongue. Dynamite is not in it as a trouble breeder. It is the hair trigger of the freer action. It goes off on the slightest provocation. It strikes heavier blows than a prize fighter or a mule kicking down hill. It causes more heart aches than a tax collector. A tongue can make a sore spot for years. The crimes chargeable to the tongue are criticism, unkindness, gossip, lying, scandal, malice and hate, the aggregate of sorrow and murder.

The word "woman" has come to take the place of "lady," so that it is now better form to say young woman than young lady. The theatrical people have, accordingly, dropped "leading lady" and say "leading woman." After a while general usage will get back from "wash lady" to "washerwoman." Then it may be expected that the usage will change again.

Every man has a right to think for himself, work for his own interest and do a number of similar selfish things, but after all the things that give the most pleasure when looking backward is the good we have done others.

A Birmingham, Ala., negro has just been paid $100,000 for a car-coupler of his invention, and can in future afford to buy his chickens instead of depending for their acquirement upon the dark of the moon.

The prophets who own to having predicted the California earthquake ought to be invited to take a guess at the date of the completion of the Panama canal. They would never live to see it verified.

It is "semi-officially" announced that this government will make no suggestion for the reduction of armaments during the Hague Conference. Nor afterwards, either, if the present signs hold.

Was Wasting Away.

"I had been troubled with kidney disease for the last five years," writes Robert R. Watts, of Salem, Mo. "I lost flesh and never felt well and doctored with leading physicians and tried all remedies suggested without relief. Finally, I tried Foley's Kidney Cure and less than two bottles completely cured me, and I am now sound and well." During the summer kidney irregularities are often caused by excessive drinking or being overheated. Attend to the kidneys at once by using Foley's Kidney Cure. J. W. McCollum & Co.

It is Dangerous to Neglect a Cold.

How often do we hear it remarked: "It's only a cold," and a few days later learn that the man is on his back with pneumonia. This is of such common occurrence that a cold, however slight, should not be disregarded. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia, and has gained its great popularity and extensive sale by its prompt cure of this most common ailment. It always cures and is pleasant to take. For sale by all druggists.

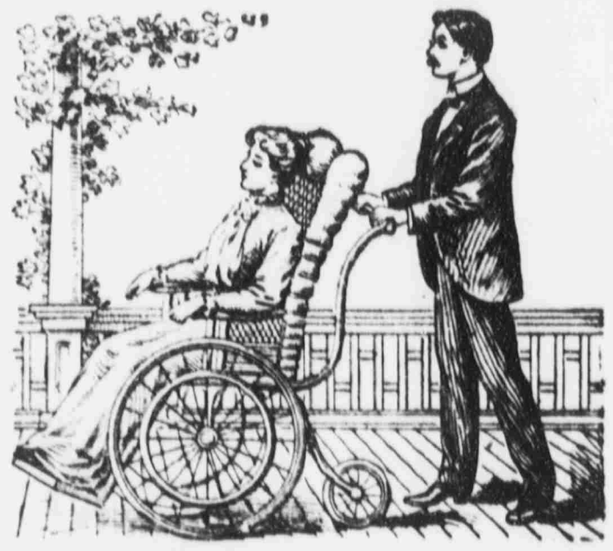
RHEUMATISM

ALMOST AS COMMON IN SUMMER AS IN WINTER.



While the damp, cold, changing weather of Winter intensifies the pains and other disagreeable symptoms of Rheumatism, it is by no means a winter disease exclusively. Through the long months of Summer its wandering pains and twitching nerves are felt by those in whose blood the uric acid, which produces the disease, has accumulated.

Rheumatism is a disease that involves the entire system. Its primary cause results from the failure of the eliminative organs, the Liver, Kidneys and Bowels, to carry out of the system the urea, or natural refuse matter. This coming in contact with the different acids of the body forms uric acid which is taken up and absorbed by the blood. This acid causes fermentation of the blood, making it sour and unfit for properly nourishing the body, and as this vital stream goes to every nook and corner of the body, the poison is distributed to all parts. The nervous system weakens from lack of rich, pure blood, the skin becomes feverish and swollen, the stomach and digestion are affected, the appetite fails and a general diseased condition of the entire system is the result.

Not only is Rheumatism the most painful of all diseases, with its swollen, stiff joints, throbbing muscles and stinging nerves, but it is a formidable and dangerous trouble. If the uric acid is allowed to remain in the blood, and the disease becomes chronic, chalky deposits form at the joints, and they are rendered immovable and stiff, and the patient left a helpless cripple for life. Every day the poison remains in the system the disease gets a firmer hold. The best time to get rid of Rheumatism is in warm weather; because then the blood takes on new life and the skin is more active and can better assist in the elimination of the poisons. With the proper remedy to force the acid out of the blood, and at the same time build up and strengten the Liver, Kidneys, Bowels and other organs of the body, Rheumatism can be permanently cured. External applications relieve the pain and temporarily reduce the inflammation, and for this reason are desirable, but they cannot have any effect on the disease. The blood is poisoned and the blood must be treated before a cure can be effected.

S. S. S., a remedy made from roots, herbs and barks, is the best treatment for Rheumatism. It goes into the blood and attacks the disease at its head, and by neutralizing the acid and driving it out, and building up the sour blood so it can supply nourishment and strength to every part of the body, it cures Rheumatism permanently. S. S. S. is the only safe cure for the disease; being purely vegetable, it will not injure the system in the least, as do those medicines which contain Potash or some other mineral ingredient. S. S. S. tones up every part of the body by its fine tonic properties. While cleansing the blood of all poisons it builds up the appetite and digestion, soothes the excited nerves, reduces all inflammation, relieves pain and completely cures Rheumatism in every form—Muscular, Inflammatory, Articular or Sciatic. If you are worried with the nagging pains of Rheumatism, do not wait for it to become chronic, but begin the use of S. S. S. and purge the blood of every particle of the poison. Write for our book on Rheumatism, and ask our physicians for any advice you wish. We make no charge for either.

Last Summer I had a severe attack of Inflammatory Rheumatism in the knees, from which I was unable to leave my room for several months. I was treated by two doctors and also tried different kinds of liniments and medicines which seemed to relieve me from pain for awhile, but at the same time I was not any nearer getting well. One day while reading a paper I saw an advertisement of S. S. S. for Rheumatism. I decided to give it a trial, which I did at once. After I had taken three bottles I felt a great deal better, and I continued to take it regularly until I was entirely cured. I now feel better than I have for years. CHAS. E. GILDERSLEEVE.

The town council at Perry last week appointed a man by the name of Sutton, from Georgia, as marshal of that city. Saturday night some of the citizens of that place concluded to try his metal and held him up in the streets, telling him they would show who was marshal. A scuffle ensued, when Sutton drew his 44 and plunked one man in the legs, breaking the bones, when the rest of the crowd scattered. This is one way Mr Sutton had of proving that he was marshal of the town of Perry

Postmaster Robbed.

G. W. Fouts, postmaster at Riverton, Ia., nearly lost his life and was robbed of all comfort, according to his letter, which says: "For 20 years I had chronic liver complaint, which led to such a severe case of jaundice that even my finger nails turned yellow; when my doctor prescribed Electric Bitters, which cured me and have kept me well for eleven years." HEALTH IN GAINESVILLE

J. W. McCollum & Co. Say Care of Digestion Solves Problem of Long Life.

J. W. McCollum & Co. believe that the problem of long life is solved by proper care of the digestive organs. Let the stomach get out of condition and soon there will be nervousness, irritation, furred tongue, specks before the eyes, weakness, debility, indigeston, and o her physical and mental troubles that directly result from a weakened stomach.

Of all the vitsl organs, the stomach is the most frequently abused, and hence, the one which most frequently fails, and so with the discovery of a remedy like Mi-o-na stomach tablets which is sold on an absolute guarantee to strenghten the digestive system, aid in assimilation of food, and cure all troubles caused by indigestion an important step has been taken towards solving the question of good health and long life.

J. W. McCollum & Co. sell Mi-o-na on an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure. A large box of the tablets costs but 50 cents, if it helps you, nothing if it fails.

T. R. Pickett & Son Secure Valuable Timber in Taylor County.

T. R. Pickett, senior member of the firm of T. R. Pickett & Son, manufacturers of lumber, Half Moon, was in the city Saturday, being en route home from Perry, in the viciniyt of which place he has purchased a large tract of timber land.

Mr. Pickett expects in the next few months to begin the erection of a fine mill on the premises He has sufficient timber to last him for the next few months at Half Moon, after which he will move to Taylor county. He is a native of this county, having been born and reared near Archer, but inasmuch as timber is becoming scarce here, he was compelled to hunt another location.

The Taylor County Herald of the 18th inst. has the following to say regarding the purchase:

"T. R. Pickett & Son of Newberry have this week purchased several thousand acres of sawmill timber beyond the Fenholloway river about six miles from Perry along the A. C. L. right of way. We understand it is their purpose to begin operating as early as possible, by first putting up a small mill with which to cut timbers for a larger mill to be ready for operation when the railroad is completed to their lands. The sale was made by T. H. Rushing, agent, of Tifton, Ga."

Fortunate Missourians.

"When I was a druggist at Livonia, Mo.," writes T. J. Dwyer, now of Graysville, Mo., "three of my customers were permanently cured of consumption by Dr. King's New Discovery, and are well and strong today. One was trying to sell his property and move to Arizona, but after using New Discovery a short time he found it unnecessary to do so. I regard Dr. King's New Discovery as the most wonderful medicine in existence." Surest cough and cold cure and lung healer. Guaranteed by all druggists. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

The Heart an Inner Garden.

He who would have beautiful roses in his garden must have beautiful roses in his heart. It is the inner garden. He must love them well and always. To win he must woo, as Jacob wooed Laban's daughter, though drought and frost consume. He must have not only the glowing imagination, the enthusiasm and the passion, but the tenderness, the thoughtfulness, the reverence of love. Dean Hole.

Not if as Rich as Rockefeller.

If you had all the wealth of Rockefeller, the Standard Oil magnate, you could not buy a better medicine for bowel complaints than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The eminent physician cannot prescribe a bottle preparation for colic and diarrhoea, both for children and adults. The uniform success of this remedy has shown it to be superior to all others. It never fails, and when reduced with water and sweetened, is pleasant to take. Every family should be supplied with it. Sold by all druggists.

If you suffer from rheumatism or pains, for Ballard's Snow Liniment will bring quick relief. It is a sure cure for sprains, rheumatism, contracted muscles and all pains—and within the reach of all. Price, 25c, 50c, $1. C. R. Smith, Tenaha, Tex., writes: "I have used Ballard's Snow Liniment in my family for years and have found it a fine remedy for all pains and aches. I recommend it for pains in the chest." Sold by W. M. Johnson.

Those Beardless Angels.

The Right Rev. Richard H. Wilmer, late bishop of Alabama, was remarkable at once for his piety and his humor. When some one asked him why it was that the pictures and figures of men angels as well as female angels were represented without beards the bishop replied promptly that it seemed to be easy enough to make angels out of women, but that men could only get into heaven by a "close shave."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

A Transformation Scene.

A fashionable audience in Paris listened to a lecture on chemistry by a celebrated chemist. At the conclusion of the lecture a lady and gentleman who were among the first to leave the hall had reached the open air when the lady caught her escort staring at her. "What is the matter?" asked the madame in surprise. "Pardon me, but you are quite blue!" The lady returned to the hall and approached a mirror. She started back in horror. The rouge upon her cheeks had been converted into a beautiful blue by the chemical decomposition which had taken place under the influence of the gases which had been generated during the lecture. The majority of the women in the audience had suffered in a similar manner. There were all sorts of colors—blue, yellow, violet and black. Some whose vanity had induced them to put ivory on the skin, coral on the lips, rouge on the cheeks and black on the eyebrows had undergone a ludicrous transformation.

The Life Insurance

Muddle has started the public to thinking. The wonderful success that has met Ballard's Horehound Syrup in its crusade on coughs, influenza, bronchitis and all pulmonary troubles—has started the public to thinking of this wonderful preparation. They are all using it. Join the procession and down with sickness. Price 25c, 50c and $1. Sold by W. M. Johnson.

Cheap Medicine.

The occidental physician is not without honor in the orient. The Calcutta Statesman tells how a doctor in a Bengal hospital had a bearskin doormat. In a few days it was plucked entirely bare. Whatever ailments the patients complained of, they regarded a few hairs from the doctor's mat as more curative than the medicines he prescribed.

Deaths From Appendicitis

Decrease in the same ratio that the use of Dr. King's New Life Pills increases. They save you from danger and bring quick and painless release from constipation and the ills growing out of it. Strength and vigor always follow their use. Guaranteed by all druggists. 25c. Try them.

From Bad to Worse.

"A few years after people gits too old to believe in Santy Claus," said Uncle Eben, "dey's apt to stadt in believin' in race hoss tips, which is wuss."—Washington Star.

If the Baby is Cutting Teeth

Be sure and use that old and well-tried remedy, Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

There always is a sense of satisfaction in bearing abused those one dislikes.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

A Mountain of Gold

Could not bring as much happiness to Mrs. Lucia Wilke of Caroline, Wis., as did one 25c box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, when it completely cured a running sore on her leg, which had tortured her 23 long years. Greatest antiseptic healer of piles, wounds and sores. 25c at all drug stores.

Sea Water.

Sea water is a complicated mixture of a great variety of substances. Roughly speaking, it consists of 96½ per cent of fresh water plus 3½ per cent of mineral salts. Three-fourths of these salts are chloride of sodium, or common table salt, and the next largest constituent is chloride of magnesium. After these come sulphate of magnesium, sulphate of lime, sulphate of potash, bromide of magnesium and carbonate of lime. In addition to these substances sea water contains minute quantities of quite a variety of elements, including iodine, phosphorus and arsenic. It also contains some silver, copper, zinc, nickel, cobalt, iron and gold. There is said to be 2 cents' worth of gold in every pailful of sea water, but as yet nobody has found a way to extract it. Copper and zinc are found in some seaweeds, and certain species of coral is three-millionths silver.

Pirating Foley's Honey and Tar.

Foley & Co., Chicago, originated Honey and Tar as a throat and lung remedy, and on account of the great merit and popularity of Foley's Honey and Tar many imitations are offered for the genuine. These worthless imitations have similar sounding names. Beware of them. The genuine Foley's Honey and Tar is in a yellow package. Ask for it and refuse any substitute. It is the best remedy for coughs and colds. J. W. McCollam & Co.

Method In Her Madness.

Clarissa—Why, you silly thing! What are you putting your damp hands out on the window sill for? You'll get them all rough and red. Annabel—Yes, I know. But Mr. de Million thinks that every woman ought to do all sorts of housework, and I'm getting my hands ready to show off tonight.

If You Don't

Succeed the first time use Herbine and you will get instant relief. The greatest liver regulator. A positive cure for constipation, dyspepsia, malaria, chills and all liver complaints. It is a sure cure for constipation and malaria fever, which is substantiated by what it has done for my family." Sold by W. M. Johnson.

Pure Milk.

"Is this pure milk?" said the inquisitive lady customer.

"Yes," replied the milkman. "We sell the cream separately."—Detroit Free Press.

Art thou in misery, brother? Then I pray be comforted. Thy grief shall pass away. Art thou elated? Ah, be not too gay. Temper thy joy. This, too, shall pass away.—Paul H. Hayne.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

A bill is better receipted, and an old chair is better reseated, and that is the resemblance between them, although neither of 'em looks at all like the other.

Stomach Troubles.

Mrs. Sue Martin, an old and highly respected resident of Faisonia, Miss., was sick with stomach trouble for more than six months. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets cured her. She says: "I can now eat anything I want and am the proudest woman in the world to find such a good medicine." For sale by all druggists.
